Rethinking the Anthropology of Magic and Witchcraft

Inherently Human

Phillips Stevens, Jr.

This book introduces students to the anthropology of magic, witchcraft, and supernatural belief. It takes a new approach, demonstrating that the bases for these beliefs and alleged practices are instinctual and likely rooted in evolutionary biology. It shows how magic and magical thinking are regular elements in daily activities, and that understanding the components of the witchcraft complex offers important insights into patterns of thinking and social behavior. This book is intended to focus anew on the core concepts of magic, witchcraft, and the supernatural, while also serving as an introduction to the anthropology of religion for undergraduate and graduate-level courses.

Primates

An Introduction

Alfred L. Rosenberger

This book is an accessible and comprehensive introduction to primatology. It provides both a survey and synthesis of primate history, biology and behavior. As a survey, it offers a focused review of living and extinct primates in regional and community frameworks. As a synthesis, it applies the community perspective in a unique way to explore primates' adaptive diversity in the context of how evolution works. The book encourages students to study primates as integrated members of regional communities, ecologically, historically and evolutionarily. This book is an ideal introduction for students studying primatology, primate behavior or primate ecology.

Becoming Neolithic

The Pivot of Human History

Trevor Watkins

Becoming Neolithic examines the revolutionary transformation of human life that was taking place around 12,000 years ago in parts of southwest Asia. Hunter-gatherer communities were building the first permanent settlements, creating public monuments and symbolic imagery, and beginning to cultivate crops and manage animals. This well-documented account offers a useful synthesis for students of prehistoric archaeology, and anyone with an interest in our prehistoric roots. This new narrative of the first rapid transformation in human evolution is also informative to those interested in cultural evolutionary theory.

Foreigners Among Us

Alterity and the Making of Ancient Maya Societies

Christina Halperin

Assessing key questions such as who the foreigners and outsiders in ancient Maya societies were and how was the foreign a generative component of identity, Foreigners Among Us reassess the arrival of foreigners as part of archaeological understandings of Pre-Columbian Maya and questions not only who these foreigners might have been but who were making such designations of difference in the first place. Contributing broadly to intellectual investigations on foreign identities from an anthropological perspective, this book enriches the understanding of Maya society for students and researchers of Mesoamerican archaeology and art history.

An Introduction to Visual Culture 3rd Edition

Nicholas Mirzoeff

In the fully rewritten third edition of this classic text, Nicholas Mirzoeff introduces visual culture as visual activism, or activating the visible. In this view, visual culture is a practice: a way of doing, making and seeing. Engaging with questions of racializing, colonialism and undoing gender throughout, this edition maps the activist turn in the field since 2014 and sets directions for its future expansion. This is a key text in visual culture studies and an essential resource for research and teaching in the field.

A Short History of Renaissance Italy 2nd Edition

Lisa Kaborycha

The fifteen chapters move briskly from the Fall of the Roman Empire in the West through the growth of the Italian city-states, where, in the crucible of pandemic disease and social unrest, a new approach to learning known as humanism was forged, political and religious certainties challenged. Traversing the entire Italian Peninsula—Florence, Rome, Milan, Venice, Naples and Sicily—this book examines the rich regional diversity of Renaissance cultural experience and considers men's and women's lives.

Voices of Sharpeville

The Long History of Racial Injustice

Nancy L. Clark, William H. Worger

This is the first in-depth study of Sharpeville, the South African township that was the site of the infamous police massacre of March 21, 1960, and prompted the United Nations to declare apartheid a "crime against humanity. Eyewitness testimonies from Sharpeville's inhabitants reveal how they coped with apartheid and why they rose up to protest this system, narrating this massacre for the first time in the words of the participants themselves. Amid worldwide struggles against racial discrimination and efforts to give voices to protestors and victims of state violence, this book provides a deeper understanding of this pivotal event for a newly engaged international audience.

Deborah Cameron

In this vitally important and engaging text, leading feminist linguist, Deborah Cameron, explores the role of language and discourse in perpetuating sexism and misogyny in the twenty-first century. Covering how the linguistic expression of prejudice against women has evolved during the last fifty years, the author of the blog, Language: A feminist guide, pays attention both to the persistence of familiar problems, such as the dominance of men in many interactional settings and to the emergence of new challenges, such as the global rise of misogynist extremism online.

Linguistics for Translators

Ali Almann, Juliane House

This engaging and accessible textbook, by two leading experts, is a carefully crafted introduction to linguistics for translators, students and researchers of translation. Starting with basic concepts and gradually moving readers to the central questions in different branches of linguistics, examples are drawn from English and many other languages, including German, Arabic, Kurdish, Swahili, French and Chinese. This is the ideal textbook for undergraduate and postgraduate students of Translation in Translation Studies, Linguistics and Modern languages.

The Linguistic Cycle

Economy and Renewal in Historical Linguistics

Elly van Gelderen

Cyclical language change is a linguistic process by which a word, phrase, or part of the grammar loses its meaning or function and is then replaced by another. This can even happen on the level of an entire language, which can experience a change in the language family it is a part of. This new text is a comprehensive introduction to this phenomenon, the mechanisms underlying it, and the relations between the different types of cycles. This text will be an indispensable resource for advanced students and researchers in historical & diachronic linguistics, language typology, and linguistic & grammatical theory.

Viral Language

Analysing the Covid-19 Pandemic in Public Discourse

Luke C. Collins, Veronika Koller

Viral Language considers a range of different types of public communication and their discussion of the Covid-19 pandemic as a way to investigate health communication. The authors introduce and apply a range of approaches informed by linguistic theory to investigate experiences of the pandemic across a variety of public contexts. In doing so, they demonstrate how experiences of health and illness can be shaped by political messaging, scientific research, news articles, and advertising.

Tragedy

John Drakakis

Series: The New Critical Idiom

Tragedy is one of the oldest and most resilient forms of narrative. Considering texts from ancient Greece to the present day, this comprehensive introduction shows how tragedy has been re-imagined and redefined throughout Western cultural history. Drakakis examines a wealth of popular plays, including works from the ancient Greeks, Shakespeare, Bertolt Brecht, Sarah Kane, and Tom Stoppard as well as the rewriting and appropriating of ancient drama through a wide range of authors, such as Chaucer, George Eliot, Ted Hughes, and Colm Tóibín. Drakakis also demystifies complex philosophical interpretations of tragedy, including those of Hegel, Kierkegaard, Nietzsche, and Benjamin.

The Routledge Introduction to American Life Writing

Amy Monticello, Jason Tucker

Series: Routledge Introductions to American Literature

The stories of lived experience offer powerful representations of a nation's complex and often fractured identity. Personal narratives have taken many forms in American literature. This volume surveys the forms of life writing that have contributed to the richness of American literature and shaped American discourse. It examines life writing as a rhetorical tool for social change and explores how technological advancement has allowed ordinary Americans to chronicle and share their lives with others.

Black Women's Liberation Movement Music

Soul Sisters, Black Feminist Funksters, and Afro-Disco Divas

Reiland Rabaka

This book argues that the Black Women's Liberation Movement of the mid-to-late 1960s and 1970s was a unique combination of Black political feminism, Black literary feminism, and Black musical feminism, among other forms of Black feminism. It critically explores the ways the soundtracks of this movement often overlapped with those of other 1960s and 1970s social, political, and cultural movements, such as the Black Power Movement, Women's Liberation Movement, and Sexual Revolution. This is an invaluable resource for students, teachers, and researchers of Popular Music Studies, American Studies, African American Studies, Critical Race Studies, Gender Studies, and Sexuality Studies.

Film Music

Cognition to Interpretation

Juan Chattah

Film Music: Cognition to Interpretation explores the dynamic counterpoint between a film's soundtrack, its visuals and narrative, and the audience's perception and construction of meaning. Adopting a holistic approach covering both the humanities and the sciences, the author examines the perceptual and cognitive processes that elicit musical meaning in film and breathe life into our cinematic experiences. Across ten chapters, extensive appendices, and hundreds of film references, this book offers a new mode of analysis, inviting readers to unlock a deeper understanding of the expressive power of film music.

Experiencing Organised Sounds

The Listening Experience Across Diverse Sound-Based Works

Leigh Landy

Experiencing Organised Sounds investigates a wide horizon of sound-based works using a template consistently across its 16 studies. It aims to address means of increasing appreciation and understanding related to the experience of sonic creativity (music involving any sounds, not just musical notes) across this repertoire as well as to launch a discussion about how the reception of sonic creativity can be influenced by the circumstances of listening, in particular, regarding the qualitative difference between the in-situ as opposed to mediated experience.

A Philosophy for the Science of Animal Consciousness

Walter Veit

This book develops a philosophy for the science of animal consciousness. It advances a true Darwinian science of consciousness in which its evolutionary origin, function, and phylogenetic diversity are moved from the field's periphery to its very centre. The author has two objectives: (i) to argue for an evolutionary bottom-up approach that addresses the problem of consciousness in terms of the evolutionary origins of a new ecological lifestyle that made consciousness worth having, and (ii) to articulate a theory of the place of consciousness as a complex evolved phenomenon that helps us to answer the question of what it is like to be a bat, an octopus, or a crow.

Descartes

David Cunning

Series: The Routledge Philosophers

In this clear and engaging book David Cunning introduces and examines the full range of Descartes' philosophy. A central focus of the book is Descartes' view that embodied human beings become more perfect to the degree that they move in the direction of finite approximations of independence, activity, immutability, and increased knowledge. Descartes is an outstanding introduction to one of the greatest of Western philosophers. Including a chronology, suggestions for further reading, and a glossary of key terms, it is essential reading for anyone studying Descartes and the history of modern philosophy.

Do We Have a Soul?

A Debate

Eric T. Olson, Aaron Segal

Series: Little Debates about Big Questions

Are we made entirely of matter, like sticks and stones? Or do we have a soul—a nonphysical entity—where our mental lives take place? The authors Eric T. Olson and Aaron Segal begin this accessible and wide ranging debate by looking at the often-overlooked question of whether we appear in ordinary experience to be material things. The debate takes in large philosophical questions extending well beyond dualism and materialism. The book features clear statements of each argument, responses to counter-arguments, in-text definitions, a glossary of key terms, and section summaries.

Food Ethics: The Basics 2nd Edition

Ronald L. Sandler

Series: The Basics

A concise yet comprehensive introduction to the ethics of the production and consumption of food. It offers an impartial exploration of the most prominent ethical questions relating to food and agriculture. The 2nd edition has been revised and updated throughout, not only to take in the latest empirical and policy information, but also to address the impact of major issues such as the COVID-19 pandemic, Russia's invasion of Ukraine, AI and machine learning, and the "gig economy". Using extensive data and real-world examples, as well as providing suggestions for further reading, this is an ideal introduction for anyone interested in the food ethics.

Medieval Philosophy

A Contemporary Introduction

Andrew W Arlig

Series: Routledge Contemporary Introductions to Philosophy

This book presents a new, contemporary introduction to medieval philosophy as it was practiced in all its variety in Western Europe and the Near East. In addition to some of the perennial questions posed by philosophers, such as "Can we know anything, and if so, what?", "What is the fundamental nature of reality?", and "What does human flourishing consist in?", this volume looks at what medieval thinkers had to say about our obligations towards animals and the environment, freedom of speech, and how best to organize ourselves politically. It assumes only a minimal familiarity with philosophy.

Moral Psychology 2nd Edition

A Contemporary Introduction

Valerie Tiberius

Series: Routledge Contemporary Introductions to Philosophy

Released in 2014, this was the first philosophy textbook in moral psychology. This new edition includes a chapter on the question of whether morality is innate or learned. As before, the book emphasizes the relationship between traditional and interdisciplinary approaches to moral psychology and aims to carefully explain how empirical research is (or is not) relevant to philosophical inquiry. The bulleted summaries, study questions, and lists for further readings at the end of each chapter have been updated.

Noncognitivism in Ethics 2nd Edition

Mark Schroeder

Series: New Problems of Philosophy

Beginning with a general introduction, Schroeder introduces three principal kinds of noncognitivist theory. This 2nd edition has been updated throughout, including new sections on expressivism as a meta-semantic argument; the rise of relational expressivism; novel understanding of the nature of propositions; and expressivism and epistemic modals, deontic modals, probability, vagueness and truth. Schroeder makes even difficult material accessible by offering crucial background along the way. Also included are exercises at the end of each chapter, chapter summaries, and a glossary. Essential reading for all students of ethics and metaethics.

Perception: The Basics

Bence Nanay

Series: The Basics

This book combines approaches from philosophy, psychology, and neuroscience in the study of perception. In addition to appealing to readers from all three of these disciplines, Perception: The Basics is a perfect introduction for students and general readers. Its interdisciplinary coverage of all aspects of perception does not require familiarity with either abstract philosophical concepts or neuroscientific knowledge. Besides addressing the classic questions of how perception works, the book highlights the intricate connections between perception and action and on perception that is not triggered by sensory input, like mental imagery, dreaming, and hallucination.

Philosophy of Mind

50 Puzzles, Paradoxes, and Thought Experiments

Torin Alter, Amy Kind, Robert J. Howell

Series: Puzzles, Paradoxes, and Thought Experiments in Philosophy

Imaginative cases, or what might be called puzzles and other thought experiments, play a central role in philosophy of mind. The real world also furnishes philosophers with an ample supply of such puzzles. This volume collects fifty of the most important historical and contemporary cases in philosophy of mind and describes their significance. The authors divide them into five sections: consciousness and dualism; physicalist theories and the metaphysics of mind; content, intentionality, and representation; perception, imagination, and attention; and persons, personal identity, and the self.

The Philosophy of Hope

Beatitude in Spinoza

Alexander Douglas

Can philosophy be a source of hope? Today the answer is often "no" – that providing hope, if it is possible at all, belongs either to the predictive sciences or to religion. In this exciting book Alexander Douglas argues that the philosophy of Spinoza can offer something akin to religious hope. He shows how Spinoza is able, without appealing to belief in any traditional afterlife, to develop a profound and original theory of how humans can escape from the conditions of death and sin. Douglas argues that this theory of escape, which Spinoza calls beatitude, is the centrepiece of his entire philosophy, though scholars have often downplayed or ignored it.

Thinking about Stories

An Introduction to Philosophy of Fiction

Samuel Lebens, Tatjana von Solodkoff

Written by philosophers, this book engages with fundamental questions about fiction, like: What is it? What does it give us? Does a story need a narrator? And why do sad stories make us cry if we know they aren't real? The format of the book emulates a lively, verbal exchange: each chapter has only one author while the other appears spontaneously in pop-up boxes in the text along the way, raising questions and voicing criticisms, and inviting responses from their co-author. This unique format allows readers to feel like they are a part of the conversation about the philosophical foundations of some of the fictions in their own lives.

What is Consciousness?

A Debate

Amy Kind, Daniel Stoljar

Series: Little Debates about Big Questions

What is consciousness and why is it so philosophically and scientifically puzzling? This book is a debate between two philosophers who are united in their rejection of this kind of "standard" physicalism - but who differ sharply in what lesson to draw from this. Amy Kind defends dualism 2.0, a thoroughly modern version of dualism (the theory that there are two fundamentally different kinds of things in the world, those that are physical and those that are mental) decoupled from any religious or non-scientific connotations.

Why It's OK Not to Think for Yourself

Jonathan Matheson

Series: Why It's OK

We tend to applaud those who think for themselves. Even as we're applauding, however, we ourselves often don't think for ourselves. This book argues that's completely OK - in fact, it's often best. Matheson shows how "expert testimony" and "the wisdom of crowds" are tested and convincing ideas that make it rational to believe something simply because other people believe it. Matheson then takes on philosophy's best arguments against his thesis, including the idea that following others is free-riding on their work, Socrates' claim that "the unexamined life isn't worth living," and that outsourcing your intellectual labor makes you vulnerable.

Why It's OK to Be a Sports Fan

Alfred Archer, Jake Wojtowicz

Series: Why It's OK

This book wrestles with a range of arguments against fandom and counters with its own arguments on why being a fan is very often a good thing. It looks at the ethical issues fans face, from the violent or racist behavior of those in the stands, to players' infamous misdeeds, to owners debasing their own clubs. In response to these moral risks, the book argues that by being critical fans, followers of a team or individual can reap the benefits of fandom while avoiding many of the ethical pitfalls.

Inger Furseth, Pål Repstad

What is religion and nonreligion? How does fundamentalism and religious radicalization emerge and grow? How does social class, gender, sexuality, race, ethnicity and other factors affect religious beliefs, practices, and organizations? Is religion a fundamental driving force or do political leaders use religion for their own purposes? In exploring these pertinent questions, this volume provides an overview of sociological theories of contemporary religious life. Covering classical sociology of religion as well as contemporary debates and topics, this book is ideal reading for students approaching the sociology of religion for the first time.

Leadership From the Middle

The Beating Heart of Educational Transformation

Andy Hargreaves

Series: Routledge Leading Change Series

In the face of a global pandemic, catastrophic weather events, war, racism, and attacks on democracy, how should educational leaders respond? While some schools and districts have taken top-down or bottom-up approaches, renowned education scholar Andy Hargreaves explores a new type of leadership – "leadership from the middle" – which becomes a driver of transformational change. This ground-breaking book unpacks not only what this type of leadership looks like, but also how this leadership approach is most effective in addressing complex problems and in educating young people to develop diverse global competencies to prepare them for their futures.

The Theory of Educational Technology

Towards a Dialogic Foundation for Design

Rupert Wegerif, Louis Major

Most theories that have previously been applied to educational technology do not account for the distinctive nature and vast potential of technology. This book addresses this issue, exploring how education has been bound up with technology from the beginning, and recognising that educational aims have already been shaped by technologies. A fascinating response to current developments in educational technology, this is a crucial read for all involved in creating, researching, or making decisions about the use of technologies within educational contexts.

Inclusive Education for the 21st Century 2nd Edition

Theory, Policy and Practice

Edited By Linda J. Graham

Thoroughly revised throughout, this bestselling book returns in a new edition to take an even more comprehensive look at the question: How can teachers and schools create genuinely inclusive classrooms that meet the needs of every student? Inclusive Education for the 21st Century provides a rigorous overview of the foundational principles of inclusive education and the barriers to access and participation. With many schools still operating under twentieth-century models that disadvantage students, this book presents the deep knowledge, tools and strategies to better equip pre- and in-service teachers and leaders to make inclusive education a reality in all schools.

Inside/Outside: A Nature-Themed Resource Book for Embedding Emotional Literacy

Joe Harkness

Inside/Outside is a unique resource for those working with young people of secondary school age, providing a variety of indoor and outdoor lessons and activities to promote and embed emotional literacy. The book is divided into three sections: emotions and feelings; self and situation; and mental health and wellbeing. The inside activities inspire students to self-reflect and develop empathy, and those outside draw on nature and learning outside the classroom. Focusing on equipping students with tangible skills to support them in the recognition, identification, and expression of their emotions, this book is a valuable resource for teachers, youth workers and home-educators.

Matthew McManus

McManus presents an intellectual history of the conservative and reactionary tradition, stretching from Aristotle and Confucius to Ayn Rand and Patrick Deneen. McManus argues for those who support the project of modernity to commit themselves to better understanding the depth of the political right's critiques, many of which expose uncomfortable but solvable problems with the quest for equality and freedom. A critical guide to the history of conservative and reactionary thought for students and scholars of political science and political history.

Myanmar 2nd Edition

Putin's "Turn to the East" in the Xi Jinping Era

Edited By Gilbert Rozman, Gaye Christoffersen

Rozman, Christoffersen and a team of expert contributors analyse the evolution of Vladimir Putin's reorientation to Asia since 2012. The authors explore how the "turn" proceeded and developed over the course of a decade, ending by examining the impact of the Ukraine war on Sino-Russian relations. Their analysis focuses on Russia's perspective, taking into account an extensive range of Russian publications to look at how priorities shifted. A comprehensive review of Russian policy towards the Indo-Pacific, which is essential reading for courses on Russian foreign policy and international relations in East Asia.

A Life Well Lived

Dialogues with a "Kabouter"

Manfred F. R. Kets de Vries

Manfred Kets de Vries wears many "hats"—psychoanalyst, executive coach, consultant, management educator, researcher, writer—but he has noticed that whichever hat he is wearing, every question he is asked boils down to one thing: "How can I live a well-lived life?". This book is one of the most important books he has written for coaches, students, leaders, managers, educators – or anyone seeking a more reflective text to guide them through the multitude of questions that we face in work and in life. He draws on a long literary tradition of the unexpected encounter with a wise "other", to animate an exploration of the deepest questions and concerns of human beings.

Beyond Hybrid Working

A Smarter & Transformational Approach to Flexible Working

Andy Lake

Much more than a book about flexible working, this is an engaging and practical management book to help organisations rethink all aspects of traditional work in the emerging post-pandemic landscape and reap the benefits from working smarter. It sets out a strategic, comprehensive and integrated approach to Smart Working in the context of new possibilities for working on a more distributed basis, and the impact of new AI-based technologies coming over the horizon. With detailed case studies, the book takes an evidence-based approach covering different sectors and types of work, including more hands-on and site-specific roles, and presents practical techniques for implementing change.

Cultural Competence

The Intrinsic Strategic Advantage

Steyn Heckroodt, Waddah S. Ghanem Al Hashmi

Combining experience and reflection, this book addresses concepts of organizational cultural competence as an internal differentiator and source of competitive advantage. Most organizations approach differentiation as an external feature of product and/or service delivery. Whereas these are open to imitation, cultural competence, as the internal DNA of an organization, is much more difficult, if not impossible, to imitate. The authors bring to bear their years of experience in corporate roles and as entrepreneurs and academics, sharing views and experiences based on research but also on primary examples, meta-insights, and real-world case studies.

In a world of flexible, remote and hybrid working, how do you create and maintain strong relationships with, and amongst, employees who are often working apart from one another? Leaders need to refocus on harnessing relationships, making their organisations more humane, and finding new ways to engage and unleash talent. To do that, the single, most impactful thing leaders can do is to create and nurture an intangible, yet essential factor called 'glue'. This book shows how leaders can shape the effectiveness of teams, reimagine the workplace, and reinvigorate the business to retain the loyalty of customers through the talents, ideas, and energy of their firm's best people.

Environmental Criminology 3rd Edition

Evolution, Theory, and Practice

Martin A. Andresen

The field of environmental criminology is a staple theoretical framework in contemporary criminological theory. This fully revised and expanded edition of the world's first comprehensive and sole-authored textbook on this influential school of criminological thought covers a wide range of topics. New to the third edition is expanded coverage on multilevel models of environmental criminology, harm indices, crime mapping, hot-spot policing, and future directions in environmental criminology. This text will be ideal for courses on crime prevention, where students are often encouraged to consider policy problems and apply theory to practice.

Interrogating the Use of LGBTQ Slurs

Still Smearing the Queer?

Meredith Worthen

Series: Queering Criminology and Criminal Justice

Interrogating the Use of LGBTQ Slurs provides a critical exploration of LGBTQ slurs through its innovative focus on hetero-cis-normativity and Norm-Centered Stigma Theory (NCST), the first ever testable theory about stigma. Based on research with more than 3,000 respondents, the ways gender/sexuality norm-violators are stigmatized and disciplined as "others" through asserting and affirming one's own social power are highlighted alongside other unique elements of slur use (joking and bonding).

Computable General Equilibrium Modeling

Theory and Applications

Kenneth Castellanos, Andrew Feltenstein, Gohar Sedrakyan

This intermediate/advanced text presents the topic of general equilibrium (CGE) modeling as a methodology for the analysis of macro and fiscal policies in modern economies, while introducing levels of disaggregation that are beyond the scope of standard macro models. Computer software is introduced to derive numerical solutions for economic models and provides examples of code, bringing in data sources that have become the foundations of CGE applications. Including downloadable supplements, this textbook will be valuable for students taking a CGE course as part of a programme in advanced microeconomics, macroeconomics, development economics, or international trade economics.

Practical Macroeconomics for Non-Economists

A Question-and-Answer Approach

Michael P. Niemira

Practical Macroeconomics for Non-Economists provides the tools, the theory, and the empirical understanding of macroeconomics without the heavy lifting of the mathematical and econometric models. This accessible book introduces the building blocks of macroeconomic thinking and challenges the reader to apply these insights to learn why economists say what they do and what guides economic policymakers. Linking actual data to theoretical concepts, it explores competing economic theories, and uncovers some of the key controversies in macroeconomic theory and how different perspectives lead to alternative and vastly different policy recommendations.

Addicted to Growth

Societal Therapy for a Sustainable Wellbeing Future

Robert Costanza

Series: Routledge Explorations in Environmental Studies

This book takes a compelling approach to describing what is needed to create the kind of future that most people on Earth really want. Our global society is hopelessly addicted to a particular vision of the world and a future that has become both unsustainable and undesirable. Addicted to Growth frames our current predicament as a societal addiction to a 'growth at all costs' economic paradigm.

Flourish by Design

Edited By Nick Dunn, Leon Cruickshank, Gemma Coupe

This book is an insightful guide to original theory and practice concerning how we can design for a better tomorrow. Covering topics as diverse as Artificial Intelligence, Bio-inspired Materials, More-than-Human Design, Sustainability, and Urban Acupuncture, it shares interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary design research to demonstrate not just what could be plausible in the near future but also explain why it might be preferable. This book is intended for a wide audience of professionals, scholars and students in design, architecture, public policy, as well as anyone who has an interest in how we design the world and, in turn, it designs us.

Introduction to Design Theory

Philosophy, Critique, History and Practice

Michalle Gal and Jonathan Ventura

Michalle Gal, Jonathan Ventura

Designed both as a course book and a source for research, Introduction to Design Theory methodically covers the central concepts of design theory, definitions of design, its historical milestones, and its relations to culture, industry, body, and ecology, language, society, gender, and ideology. Aimed towards undergraduate and postgraduate students, as well as teachers and scholars, from across the design disciplines, it invites readers to engage with design from an interdisciplinary perspective, departing from the traditional academic compartmentalization of practice, history and philosophy.

The Path to Net Zero for the Fashion Industry

Five Strategies for Decarbonisation

Simon J. Kew

This book uses a quantitative science-based approach to explain where the greenhouse gas emissions emitted by the fashion industry are generated and it explores what strategies can be deployed to achieve Net Zero by 2050. It aims to demystify the source of emissions from the industry, breaking down in detail their origin, while identifying the steps that can be taken when designing and sourcing new products. This book serves as a practical guide for designers, buyers, and the fashion industry in general to develop and understand approaches and strategies to reduce energy consumption and the resulting GHG emissions to reach Net Zero.

Human Rights and Populism

Jolyon Ford

For decades, framing an issue as a 'human rights' issue carried certain power and effect in politics and international relations, one that has been challenged by the recent rise of populist political forces. Ford explores the recent impact of populist politics on the universalist human rights project, in particular, how scholars have framed and responded to this challenge.

Brazil after Bolsonaro

The Comeback of Lula da Silva

Edited By Richard Bourne

This new collection captures and presents the voices of a wide range of stakeholders, including academics and journalists in Brazil and abroad, to produce the first systematic engagement with Lula's upcoming presidency. The authors examine the legacy of Lula's previous presidency, what has happened in the interim, and what are the challenges facing a new Lula administration. Assuming no prior knowledge and written in an accessible style, this book is ideal for those seeking to further their understanding of contemporary politics in Brazil, and to learn the context and consequences of the transfer of power from Jair Bolsonaro to Luiz Inácio Lula da Silva.

Kathleen R. Arnold

Recognizing the radical disparity between migration/border policy and constitutional law "inside these borders.", Kathleen R. Arnold focuses on two main forms of migrant protest to explore the meaning of resistance in a sovereign context: self-harming protest by detainees and faith-based sanctuary of individuals scheduled for detention. This book will be of interest to scholars, migrant advocacy professionals (including INGO and IGO officers), graduate students, and advanced undergraduate students in a variety of fields from legal studies to forced migration and refugee studies; political science, human rights, protest history and contemporary movements.

Joan C. Lopez, Beth Fisher-Yoshida

In this book, Joan C. Lopez and Beth Fisher-Yoshida offer an alternative narrative of youth and peacebuilding, to the popular one about youth and violence. Using testimonies of current and past youth community leaders in Colombia, they bring attention to the ways peaceful responses to violent conflicts are formed in communities and how these have the potential to inform processes of peacebuilding. Narratives of Peacebuilding in Colombia fills an important gap in the literature on the characteristics of peacebuilding. It is a must read for academics, students and practitioners interested in the study and practice of peacebuilding in violent and post violent contexts.

Radical Mindfulness

Why Transforming Fear of Death is Politically Vital

James K. Rowe

Radical Mindfulness examines the root causes of injustice, asking why inequalities along the lines of race, class, gender, and species continue to exist. Specifically, James K. Rowe examines fear of death as a root cause of systemic inequalities and proposes a more embodied approach to social change as a solution. This book is for academics, activists, and individuals who want to overcome supremacy of all kinds but are struggling to understand and develop methods for attacking it at the roots.

The Racialization of Sexism

Men, Women and Gender in the Populist Radical Right

Francesca Scrinzi

Series: Gender and Comparative Politics

Drawing on a two-year comparative and intersectional study of the Lega Nord in Italy and the Front national (now Rassemblement national) in France, and based on over 100 activists’ life histories, this book tackles how gender, at the interplay with class, ethnicity, age and religion shapes the parties’ strategies as well as their activists’ experiences; and how gender relations are transformed in unconventional ways within these parties. It will be of interest to those studying gender, as well as nationalism, racism, social movements, radical politics and party politics.

Bulletproof Fashion

Security, Emotions, and the Fortress Body

Barbara Sutton

Series: Fashion Sociologies

In the context of gun proliferation and persistent gun violence in the United States, a controversial security strategy has gained public attention: bulletproof fashion. This book examines concerns about security focusing on armored clothing and accessories for civilians. The book sheds light on the role of emotions in relation to discourses and perceptions of security, and encourages feminist and sociological studies to pay attention to the linkages between security, bodies, and dress. It is ideal for students and scholars interested in security and gun violence, culture and politics, neoliberalism and consumption, and bodies and emotions.

Dilemmas of Allyship

White Anti-Racists and the Challenges of Social Justice

Zachary Sunderman

Dilemmas of Allyship investigates the contemporary phenomenon of social justice allyship from a novel perspective. Departing from evaluative analyses, in which only "success" or "failure" can be seen, Zachary Sunderman argues that today's movement is best understood as a set of socially mediated dilemmas, involving contradictions between mutually exclusive sets of motivations and interests. Based on interviews with American activists, Dilemmas uncovers how allies experience, understand, and manage these difficulties, and explores the ways in which they can both threaten and strengthen the project of white anti-racism.

Dying for Capitalism

How Big Money Fuels Extinction and What We Can Do About It

Charles Derber, Suren Moodliar

Series: Universalizing Resistance

Dying for Capitalism analyzes the "triangle of extinction" that links capitalism, environmental destruction, and militarism as a system that cannot sustain life on the planet. The authors analyze how the extinction triangle evolved historically, how it functions globally as integral to the world capitalist order, and how the United States has become the dominant "extinction nation." This is an original, accessible book for scholars, students, activists, and the general public on the greatest crisis the world has faced.

Edited By Jeffrey R. Di Leo, Sophia A. Mcclennen

The alt-right movement in the US has actively been endorsing the use of left theory to achieve its ends—and with varying degrees of success. This book asks if the alt-right's reference of left theory is just bad reading, or are there troubling ways that certain types of left theory encourage such interpretations? Are there lessons to be learned in what can often appear as an overlapping desire to deconstruct concepts like truth, justice, freedom and democracy? Drawing on the longer history of right-wing readings of left theory, this volume seeks to unpack these recent developments and consider their impact on the future of theory.

Ronald J Berger

There has been substantial sociological work on the Holocaust, although this scholarship has often been ignored or neglected, including in the discipline of sociology itself. Sociology and the Holocaust brings this scholarly tradition to light, and in doing so offers a comprehensive synthesis of the vast historical and social science literature on the before, during, and after of the Holocaust, a tour d'horizon from an explicitly sociological perspective. As such, the aim of the book is not simply to describe the chronology of events that culminated in the deaths of six million Jews, but to understand these events and the ongoing legacy of the Holocaust sociologically.

Jan Baars

Series: Aging and Society

Long Lives are for the Rich is the title of a silent ominous program that affects the lives of millions of people. In all developed countries disadvantaged and, especially, poor people die much earlier than the most advantaged. During these shorter lives they suffer ten to twenty years longer from disabilities or chronic disease. This does not happen accidentally: health inequalities – including those between healthy and unhealthy lifestyles – are plausibly caused by social inequalities that are reproduced over the life course. This crucial function of the life course has become painfully visible during its neoliberal reorganization since the early 1980s.

Case Studies in Coaching Ethics 2nd Edition

Real Dilemmas in High School, College, and Professional Sports

Edited By Anthony Parish, Timothy Baghurst

This book presents a variety of cases based on true stories that present some of the ethical decisions coaches must make across high school, collegiate, and professional sports. Using a sequential system of less to more complicated, 40 case studies are presented across the sports spectrum that coaches have experienced. Although names and situations have been changed, these cases have happened and provide real applicability to coaches. In addition, each case contains multiple situations perhaps with no "right" answer that test a coach's value system and ability to prioritize actions. Questions are provided at the end of each case that allow for reflection.

Big House Little City

Architectural Design Through an Urban Lens

Benedict Zucchi

In this book, Leon Battista Alberti's assertion in his famous Renaissance treatise that "the city is like a big house, and the house is in turn like a little city" forms the springboard for a series of reflections on architecture's relationship to urbanism and how their once intimate symbiosis can be recovered. Written by a Principal of international multi-disciplinary practice BDP, the book offers a compelling approach to the design of projects at all scales, within an ecological perspective: the sense that big and small, cities and buildings must be approached holistically if we are to reverse the degradation and depletion of our habitat.

Design Technology in Contemporary Architectural Practice

Dominik Holzer

Design Technology in Contemporary Architectural Practice lifts the curtain to unveil how eleven world-leading design studios integrate technology (such as Computational Design, BIM and Digital Fabrication) as part of their day-to-day design exploration and delivery. Via first-hand accounts, the book offers rare insights about how these firms apply technology to purposefully disrupt and support their creative design processes, to then explore how technology gets integrated on an organisational level. This book will appeal to both professional and academic readers.

Designing Spatial Culture

Roderick Adams

This book investigates a powerful experiential dialogue formed between the habitation of space and a diversified cultural realm. Using authoritative case studies, it shifts the focus in the spatial realm from an object-based experience (where space is filled with things) to a more complete immersive experience (combining physical and digital). A key part of this exploration is the relationship between the architecture and the interior which is often the most predominant spatial experience and fundamental to the understanding spatial experience and existing cultures. It is essential reading for students and researchers in architecture, interior design and urban design.

FABRIC[ated]

Fabric Innovation and Material Responsibility in Architecture

Edited By Tolya Stonorov

FABRIC[ated] examines fabric as a catalyst for innovation, reflection, change and transformation in architecture, exploring the ways in which research and development of fabric can, and historically has, influenced and revolutionized architecture, teaching and design. Through the work of the many authors of this book, we see fabric as drape, skin, veil, mold, concept and inspiration. Offering readers pedagogical and practical models for international projects highlighting fabric's use in architecture, this book will appeal to the novice and the expert, architecture students and practitioners alike.

Introducing Architectural Theory 2nd Edition

Expanding the Disciplinary Debate

Korydon Smith, Miguel Guitart

Building on the success of the first edition, Introducing Architectural Theory: Expanding the Disciplinary Debate broadens the range of themes, voices, and geographies represented, to provide a more comprehensive and contemporary theory book. This new edition has been fully revised, updated and expanded to include long-standing debates, such as simplicity vs. complexity or the relationship between form and function, as well as newer discussions on innovation, globalization, and social equity. Written for beginning architecture students and those outside the discipline, its critical approach will equally engage the minds of upper-level students and experts.

Kenzo Tange and the Metabolist Movement 2nd Edition

Urban Utopias of Modern Japan

Zhongjie Lin

Amid Japan's political turbulence in 1960, seven architects and designers founded Metabolism to propagate radical ideas of urbanism. Metabolists' visionary schemes of future cities gave birth to revolutionary design paradigms, which reinvented the discourse of modern Japanese architecture and propelled it through the years of Economic Miracle to a global prominence. This new edition expands Zhongjie Lin's pathbreaking account on Tange and Metabolism centered at the intersection of urbanism and utopianism. It is a key book for architectural and urban historians, architects and all those interested in avant-garde design and Japanese architecture.

Twenty-Five+ Buildings Every Architect Should Understand

Revised and Expanded Edition 3rd Edition

Simon Unwin

The underlying theme of this book is the relationship of architecture to the human being, how it frames our lives and orchestrates our experience; how it can help us make sense of the world and contribute to our sense of identity and place. Exploring these dimensions through a wide range of case studies that illustrate the rich diversity of twentieth- and twenty-first-century architecture, this book is essential reading for every architect. With the addition of numerous shorter analyses, this new edition covers an even greater range of architectural ideas, providing students and architects with further inspiration for exploration in their own design work.

A Practical Guide to Cost Engineering

Helber Macedo

Aimed to show you how to work as a cost engineer out in the real world, this book introduces the practical side of cost management through examples and exercises based on real cases from a diverse range of engineering projects from nuclear, oil and gas and renewable energy sectors. The book introduces and demonstrates the activities of the cost engineer throughout a project life cycle. The focus is on providing a practical approach where the reader can first understand a concept and then apply it using an Excel tool developed by the author which allows the reader to simulate different scenarios and results.

Applying a Systems Thinking Approach to the Construction Industry

Michael Siebert

Using the UK housing sector as a case study, Mike Siebert applies a Systems Thinking approach to tackling some of the shared Wicked Problems faced by an industry that urgently needs to boost its productivity levels, build more sustainably, and more affordably, and generally improve its working practices. His central aim is to show how, if a Systems Thinking approach were to be applied to the UK housing industry's problems, many of them could be resolved to the benefit of all parties involved: government, housebuilders, material suppliers, the warranty industry, the design industry, and the so often ignored end users. Essential reading for all construction industry stakeholders.

Design for Dementia

Living Well at Home

Bill Halsall, Michael Riley, Eef Hogervorst

Design for Dementia: Living Well at Home is written by an interdisciplinary team whose aim is to present lessons learnt from the Dementia Demonstration House at the Building Research Establishment's Innovation Park. Known as Chris and Sally's House, the project represents a unique opportunity to show in practice what can be done to assist people living with dementia to continue to live at home and as part of the community with as much independence as possible. This book presents evidence based practical design guidance backed up by over 15 combined years of research by experienced professional designers and includes illustrations and photographs to demonstrate key design ideas.

Real Estate Analysis

A Toolkit for Property Analysts

David Rees

Real Estate Analysis: A Financial Toolkit presents economic and financial models, applications and insights, packaged as a toolkit for analysts and other participants in commercial and residential real estate markets. Drawing on mainstream and less-familiar economic analysis and financial models, readers will encounter applications and insights in a real estate context. The founding proposition is that "good theory is good practice". Graduates contemplating a career in real estate, as well as professionals looking for new insights or seeking to offer fresh advice to their clients, will find tools to broaden their perspectives and, perhaps, challenge established preconceptions.

Security by Design

Protecting Buildings and Public Places Against Crime and Terror

Manjari Khanna Kapoor

This is a book about the intersection of architecture and security, about effective crime prevention and counter terror using the built form. Combining international case studies including One World Trade Centre, New York; the New WHO Headquarters, Geneva; and the Akshardham Temple, New Delhi, along with numerous examples from the author's professional career, this book offers a systematic approach to integrating security into built environment design for easy adoption by architects, planners, security professionals and policy makers.

Bluefield Housing as Alternative Infill for the Suburbs

Damian Madigan

Suburbanised cities share a common dilemma: how to transition to more densely populated and socially connected urban systems while retaining low-rise character, avoiding gentrification, and opening neighbourhoods to more diverse housing choices. Bluefield Housing offers a new land definition and co-located infill model addressing these concerns, through describing and deploying the types of ad-hoc modifications that have been undertaken in the suburbs for decades. It offers innovative suburban infill ideas for policy makers, planners, architects, researchers and students of housing and design studies, and for those with a stake in the future of the suburbs.

Canopy Cities

Protecting and Expanding Urban Forests

Timothy Beatley

This book provides a comprehensive overview of the essential role of trees and forests in cities, and examines the creative approaches cities around the world are taking to protect trees and expand their urban forests. Moving beyond the view that trees are luxuries and therefore non-essential to the life of a city, the book examines urban tree policies and approaches that foster tree protection, including tree codes and bylaws, and calls for greater community engagement to preserve this important facet of urban life.

Design by Fire

Resistance, Co-Creation and Retreat in the Pyrocene

Emily Schlickman, Brett Milligan

Drawing upon fieldwork, mapping, drone imagery, and interviews, this publication curates 27 global design case studies within the vulnerable and dynamic wildland-urban interface and its adjacent wildlands. The book catalogs these examples into three general approaches: those that resist the creative and transformative power of fire and forces of landscape change, those that embrace and utilize fire while also trying to guide landscape forces, and those that intentionally try to retreat and minimize human intervention in fire-prone landscapes coevolved to human agency.

Designed Landscapes

37 Key Projects

Alan Tate, Marcella Eaton

This book is a case-by-case study of thirty-seven significant, existing works of landscape design worldwide. Each project is examined on the basis of date, previous site condition, designer(s), design intentions, current composition, unique features, ownership and management, and comparable projects. Each chapter offers an insightful critique of the featured projects. Including a wide range of case studies from countries such as western Europe, USA, Canada, India, Japan and China, and lavishly illustrated with over 200 full-colour images, this book is a must-have volume for anyone interested in the history and current practice of landscape architecture.

Field Sketching for Environmental Designers

Chip Sullivan

This graphic sketchbook is a primer for sparking imagination and creativity in landscape architecture and urban design drawing. Loaded with examples of work from a plethora of experienced artists, designers, planners and naturalists world-wide, each chapter provides easy-to-follow instructions on a wide variety of techniques for field sketching and plein-air painting. The exercises are designed to help readers progressively build a set of skills that will help them construct meaning and gain knowledge from on-site, field observation.

Le Corbusier's Chandigarh Revisited

Preservation as Future Modernism

Vikramaditya Prakash

Written by an esteemed scholar and former resident of the city, this fascinating book re-evaluates Le Corbusier's work in Chandigarh in terms of the pressing challenges of the present, in particular climate change, globalization, neo-nationalism and information technology. Through a lively poststructuralist and postcolonial framework, the book explores issues of preservation, identity, meaning, and change, comparing how the Chandigarh we see today compares to the original plans and drawings. Engaging and erudite throughout, the book will appeal to any student, scholar or professional with an interest in architecture, landscape architecture and urban planning.

Bruce Sharky

Nature-Based Design in Landscape Architecture showcases a range of built works designed by landscape architects from many countries of the world representing diverse environmental regions and uses. These projects demonstrate the transformative potential of a nature-based approach to landscape design. The book will be a welcome supplement for an undergraduate landscape architecture, survey or design studio courses, and may also be used at master's degree level either as part of a landscape architecture survey seminar or early design studio.

Wild Spaces in Urban Development

Grassroots Imaginaries in a Globalising World

Amartya Deb

This fascinating book examines how microsites of spontaneous nature can reframe our understanding of the relationship between urban development and green space. Drawing on existing literature and primary research in a range of towns and cities, including Quito in Ecuador, Bengaluru and Kolkata in India, and Whitby in United Kingdom, the book delves into the morphology, meanings and values of those small-scale assemblages of wild growth which are typically overlooked. A unique examination of an under-researched topic, the book will appeal to students, researchers and professionals across landscape architecture, urban planning, urban ecology and all related fields.

Patsy Eubanks Owens, Jayoung Koo, Yiwei Huang

This book addresses the everyday human behavior in outdoor built environments and explains how designers can learn about and incorporate their knowledge into places they help to create. Bridging research and practice, and drawing from disciplines such as environmental psychology, cultural geography, and sociology, the book provides an overview of theories such as personal space, territoriality, privacy, and place attachment are explored in the context of outdoor environments and, in particular, the landscape architecture profession. Authors share the impact that place design can have on individuals and communities with regards to health, safety, and belonging.

Economic development is intended to benefit everyone in a community, however, in many cases, increased public and private investment can result in the pricing out and displacement of existing residents and businesses. How do we achieve more equitable outcomes?

100 Women

Architects in Practice

Tom Ravenscroft, Harriet Harriss, Naomi House, Monika Parrinder

All the architects in this book deserve international recognition. The reality is, though, that few are household names. Over the last decade, awareness of the need for gender balance in architecture has gained traction. Within the profession, women remain underrepresented, underpromoted and underpaid. Failure to acknowledge women's contribution to the built environment has perpetuated this cycle and impoverished us all. By showcasing 100 exceptional architects – who happen to be women – this book provides a flagship reference to inspire and support everyone working in the profession, no matter how they identify.

Aluminium

A Studio Design Guide

Michael Stacey

Combining an inspirational overview of the use of aluminium in architecture and infrastructure with a technical level of detail, this book shows how useful and versatile aluminium is – and how architects can actually design with it. This book provides access to state of the art research into the best practice in application of aluminium to architecture: from curtain walling and cladding roofing to structural considerations. It demonstrates the material's design flexibility and how it works well with other materials. Each process will be accompanied by exemplar case studies that demonstrate the potential and application.

How to Be an Architect Developer

Amanda Baillieu, Gus Zogolovitch

As trained problem solvers, architects are in a strong position to release value from sites and spot opportunities. They're able to work up creative solutions, which a non-architect developer might. Featuring illustrated case studies and practical guidance, this is the first book aimed at the architect developer that covers every stage of the development process, from finding land through to raising capital, understanding risk and marketing and selling.

Old Buildings, New Ideas

A Selective Architectural History of Additions, Adaptations, Reuse and Design Invention

Françoise Astorg Bollack

Some architectural transformations are modest, some are revolutionary. Shining a light on the hidden side of the accepted narrative of the history of architecture, this book explores works which transform existing buildings to build a way forward, through adaptations, additions and visual shifts. Examining 30 buildings across Europe, North America and South America, spanning from the early Middle Ages to the end of the 20th century, it demonstrates the creative possibilities of working with existing buildings. The book reveals how formal inventions can shape architecture and our environment over time in a built world constantly in a state of becoming.

RIBA Climate Guide

Mina Hasman

Climate change is a threat to humankind, which requires immediate action. The built environment has a vital role to play in responding to the climate emergency. There is a pressing need for architects to acquire the requisite skills and knowledge to design buildings that deliver sustainable outcomes, meeting the RIBA 2030 Climate Challenge and mandatory competence in climate literacy. Equipping you with the key information that built environment professionals require to halt climate change and mitigate its impacts in your day-to-day work, this book is organised around six overarching topics.

Thrive

A field guide for women in architecture

Sumita Singha

Architecture needs women. How can the built environment be designed without the expert input of half the population? In spite of the significant number of women choosing to study architecture as undergraduates, once qualified women remain in the minority. As professionals their expertise is often overlooked, their work devalued and their contribution to the canon forgotten. Yet women's work is critical to the sustainability of a profession that must aspire to design high-quality buildings for the whole of society. How can architecture attract, recruit and retain women? And how can women find ways to thrive within it?

Aircraft Communications and Navigation Systems 3rd Edition

Mike Tooley, David Wyatt

This introduces the principles for aircraft maintenance engineering especially for Air Transport Association of America chapters 23/34, and modules 11 and 13 of part-66 of the European Aviation Safety Agency syllabus. It supports any EASA or FAR-147-approved course in aerospace engineering. It includes a new chapter on EMC, with examples of EMI, and covers antenna configuration and matching; the Smith Chart; Virtual Network Analysis; Software Defined Radio technology; precision-area navigation (P-RNAV); phased array radar technology; and ADS-B and FANS mandates. With self-test questions, exercises and multiple choice questions, and interactive materials on the book's website.

Electric and Hybrid Vehicles 3rd Edition

Tom Denton, Hayley Pells

Endorsed by the Institute of the Motor Industry, this full colour textbook introduces the subject for further education and undergraduate students, technicians, and drivers. This edition is extensively updated, especially regarding batteries, charging and the high voltage pathway, and with new case studies and illustrations. It covers the different types of hybrid and electric vehicle, costs and emissions, and the charging infrastructure, before explaining how the vehicles work, plus the maintenance and repair procedures. It particularly suits students studying for IMI Levels 2, 3 and 4 Awards in Hybrid Electric Vehicles, IMI Accreditation, C&G and all other EV/Hybrid courses.

Fundamental Electrical and Electronic Principles 4th Edition

Christopher R. Robertson, Jo Verhaevert

This book covers the essential principles that form the foundations for electrical and electronic engineering courses. This new edition is extensively updated with a greater focus on electronic principles, evenly balanced with electrical principles. Fuller coverage is given to active electronics, with the additional topics of diodes and transistors, and core topics such as oscilloscopes now reflect state-of-the-art technology. The book forms an excellent core work for beginning further education students with some mathematics background preparing for careers as technicians, and an introductory text for first year undergraduate students in all engineering disciplines.
